Precision treatment is not currently offered as standard care for Australians. It should be.

Together with the Australian Genomic Cancer Medicine Centre (OMICO) and Garvan Institute of Medical Research, Love Your Sister has formulated an affirmative action solution.

It is our vision that precision treatment is offered to ALL cancer patients, whatever the cancer, regardless of location, income, or status.

“Australia can’t wait anymore. Too many cancer patients are being left behind.” - Samuel Johnson

Precision medicine puts patients on the right medicine, first time, every time. Bureaucracies are too slow and are not keeping up. By partnering with businesses everywhere, Samuel has a solution. Precision medicine for all can be achieved if businesses join in.

This is a mammoth task. Our scientists are smart enough, they just don’t have the resources they need. We need to stamp our feet together. And the right time is now.

When business and individuals unite and act with meaning and purpose, we will triumph.

“Together we can end cancer now.”
